

News Update for August 17, 2020

17-18 Jesus came back, "God bless you, Simon, son of Jonah! You didn't get that answer out of books or from teachers. God in heaven let you in on this secret of who I really am. And now I'm going to tell you who you are, really are. You are Peter, a rock. This is the rock on which I will put together my church, a church so expansive with energy that not even the gates of hell will be able to keep it out."

(Matthew 16:17-18 The Message)

Sunday's Message:

In the gospel lesson from Matthew today Jesus asks, "Who do the people say the Son of Man is?" If we had read this passage from the gospel of Mark, the question would have been presented as Jesus asking, "Who do people say I am?" It is a similar question to the one I have been asking myself at camp this week as I mourn the passing of my mom, "Who will people say that I am?"

"Who am I" is an important question in the context of today's scripture, since it leads the same Peter whom Jesus pulled up out of the drink while in wonder of his "little" amount of faith, to understand and proclaim Jesus to be Messiah. Peter, in realizing who Jesus was, learned who he himself was meant to be. Our passage from Matthew is formative in helping us understand Jesus as Christ. This week, as I thought about who my mom was, I came to have a greater understanding of who I am, especially in relationship to the Lord of Love to whom I have committed my life.

My mom was so practical – until it came to love, and then she was extravagant! I hope that people will say that I am the daughter that my mother intended to raise, who was in turn the daughter her mother intended to raise.

This is a small piece of the story about how those practical daughters came to be women of extravagant love:

Many decades ago, Grandma and Grandpa took in a young man named Adrian at the request of the pastor. By that time, my grandparents' children were out of the house except for the youngest girl. Adrian was the hired hand they needed but was part of the family from that time forward.

When I chose unwisely to leave home and get married at 16, Mom and Dad said that they refused to let me out of their lives and stood beside me, even as I balked at being loved by them. Before I came back to run the farm, Mom and Dad had a hired hand named Mike, whom they loved like a son and stood beside, even when he went to prison.

Now that my kids are grown and out of the house, I, like my mother and grandmother before me, have welcomed an adult "son" into my home. This one is a recovering meth addict, and the first of about a dozen young adults and others who are hungry for love, most without adequate shelter, who hang around the church and call me mom.

The truth, as I currently know it:

- Extravagant love is a real thing
- Peter was the rock on whom the church is built
- I am the daughter whom I was bred and raised to be
- Jesus is Messiah in whom I trust and have life in

Praises be to God. - Amen.

I miss you and love you.

Blessings,
Rev. Ruth

Remember to hold each other tightly in your heart.

Work around the church by Don Rohde

Rob was out in the alley this morning, putting the final coat of driveway sealant on the patch in the alley. This ends Rob’s month-long battle against the water from the alley that was leaking into the basement through the boiler room hall outside steps. It has been dug out, patched, crack-filled and now seal coated. I am feeling good about the odds that he has fixed the problem. We are so fortunate for have Rob here to take care of our beautiful building.
